[Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.] FROM COL. WILDER'S MOUNTED INFANTRY.

Pound Spring, Ga., Sept. 17, 1863. The operations of Col. Wilder's mounted infantry have since the opening of the campaign been conducted at a distance so remote from department headquarters, at which point my duties as reporter require my presence, that I have been unable until now to give a full and ccurate account of them.

A command that by its untiring industry and dauntless perseverance has thus far earned such an enviable record in the history of the Army of the Cumberland as the mounted infantry brigade under Col. Wilder, cannot have failed to elicit a flattering interest on the part of the people in its operations.

The command left camp at Dechard, Tenn., on the 16th ult., simultaneously with the grand movement forward of the entire army. The day was employed in climbing the mountains over a road difficult of passage on account of the numerous and formidable natural obstacles that oppose at short intervals from the base to the summit. The ascent by the long supply train, heavily ladened for a protracted march, was successfully completed by evening, and the brigade encamped at Uni-On the morning of the 17th the line of march was resumed by the delighted troops, and as a flood of golden light, streaming from the setting sun, illumed the undulating outline of mountains tretching far to the right, the column rested for the night at Tracy City. The aborious than that of the two days preceding. The heavy rains had washed gullies in the roads frequently to a depth of two feet, rendering them absolutely impassable. These cuts the men were immediately employed in filling, while the prisoners removed the trees prostrated by the storms in such a manner as to thoroughly block the passage. At many points huge rocks of surprising dimensions, loosened by the rains from their uncertain bases on the roadside, had slidden into the road and opposed an almost insurmountable barrier. At one place the road was so obstructed that the wagons could not be brought forward except by removing the ugly blockforward except by removing and ader. Owing to the immense weight and size of the rock the work of removing it appeared to be altogether impracticable. The applicato be altogether impracticable. The tion of an intelligent force sufficed to plish the desired result, and in a short time he reverberating crash and crackle of timbers announced its crushing, destructive descent. Large trees failed to impede it. Its momentum was as irresistible as a whichwind, and the giants of the forest offered but

The work of opening the road, though arduous, suffered no delay. Performed under the watchful eye of the zealous commander, its completion was shortly announced, and at evening the Colonel pitched his tent on the eastern slope of the Cumberland mountains, overlooking the fertile fields of "Sequatchie Valley." The gray of early dawn on the morning of the 19th saw the long line of horsemen, followed by their supply train that the wakeful industry of Quartermaster Preston ley, and striking at Purdon's an excellent road, nothing of importance transpired until the brigade neared Thurman's, surprising at This point a party of marauding desperadoes— in sparing the lives of whom justice, whom they ignored, was cheated of her dues. Almost the entire band was captured, our prisoners numbering seventeen, one lifeles, body beour men at the moment seems to have been heaven-directed. The rebels had in custody five of Capt. Hampton's company of Federal scoute, whom they were making preparations to hang when our advance offered timely interference, and rescued the poor fellows from their perilous situation. The march, happily delayed, was continued from this point to Poe's tavern, where the command rested for

The 20th dawned on the column again in motion, which, crossing Walden's Ridge and descending into the Tennessee valley sur-prised another party of rebel scouts, capturng seven of the number, and leaving to the care of their sympathizers on the mountain several of their wounded comrades.

On the morning of the 21st, Col. Wilder detached Col. Funkhouser, of the 98th Illinois, with two regiments and two rifled guns, to make a diversion at Harrison's Landing, while he, with three regiments and four guns —both sections from Captain Lilley's 18th Indiana battery—moved forward to a point on the north side of the river immediately oppsite Chattanooga.

Arriving near the point aimed at, which he reached after a march of fourteen miles, at 10 o'clock A. M., Col. Wilder ordered forward at double-quick the 123d Illinois and 17th Inliana, who, advancing rapidly to the river bank, captured the mules belonging to a rebel battery that were sent over to graze. The ferry boat lying on this side barely escaped opened with artillery from a well planned fort on our skirmishers.

It has been charged by the rebel press as a with non-combatants, women and children. without giving such notice as would have insured their removal to a place of safety. The censure is unmerited. The Colonel understands and appreciates the courtesies due the other sex on occasions such as this, and had determined not to endanger the lives o women and children without allowing the usual time for removal to a place of safety city by our forces, it was certainly a very gross offence against propriety for the enemy to bring into requisition a weapon that we declined to use, until the proper length of time should elapse for the disposition of the non-combatants. The very act of firing the first shell justified the Federal batteries in replying supposing that the enemy would not proing, supposing that the enemy would not prowoke an artillery fight unless he was ready to receive our fire. Not a single shot was di-rected against any building, save the depot, in which the rebels had stored their prov the battery that opened on our advance. What-ever harm was done to persons or property re-sulted from a failure of the shell, through defects in its manufacture, to reach its destina-tion. Two steamboats lying under cover of the rebel batteries were sunk and disabled.

The rebels, induced by the formidable show of strength made on the ridge opposite the city and at Harrison's Landing, commenced the removal of the machinery, prisoners, works of the rolling mill, the bells of the churches, and the sick.

All the old wagons and superfluous baggage was piled up and fired.

It was the object of Col. Wilder to encourage the delusion he had forced on the enemy's mind, and by the industrious employment of his brigade to confirm the assertion of this leading journal, the Chattanooga Rebel, that the attacking force of the enemy numbered fifteen thousand. The effect of this demon stration was to induce the enemy to believe that the main body of our forces were opposite the city, intending when preparations were completed, to attempt a crossing of the river. To prevent this the rebels worked river. To prevent this the receis works and night and day in building new works and strengthening old ones.

nfantry, I have forwarded to you.

I have noticed in the Nashville Union an ar-Thave noticed in the Nashrille of his an article in which the author has erroneously represented the services of Gen. Wagner and his brigade. It is said by the agent of the Associated Press that Gen. Wagner's admirable strategy in deceiving the enemy was highly commended by the General commanding. To what extent this creditable mention was deserved we shall see. Gen. Wagner with his brigade was sent by Gen. Wood to the heights, opposite Chattanooga, to act as support for Col. Wilder, whose troops were first to reach, and first to assail the city. Although he ranks Col. Wilder, he did not interfere with the conduct of his troops, nor in the least direct their movements. He sat quietly on the mountain overlooking the operations of the overtaxed troops below, and on one occasion, when the laborious duties of the mounted infantry would admit of but one relief night and day, actually asked for a detail from this command to perform outpost duty for his troops on the mountain. He displayed no strategy, for he lacked the opportunity. His troops were not first in Chattanooga either, for the 92d Illinois, commanded by Col. Atkins, of the mounted infantry, were in the place patrolling the streets, and had their colors flying from the Crutchfield House long before any of General Wagner's troops had entered. Col. Atkins had but one flag, and hence on the fortifications floated no colors until those of the 97th . Wilder, whose troops were first to reach, ons floated no colors until those of the 97th Obio, by order of Gen. Wagner, who positively forbade Wilder's troops crossing before his, were planted by an orderly sent over to do the work before a single regiment of infantry had

How it was that this obviously unfair disposition of credit resulted I am at a loss to know. I have ever endeavored to confer hon-orable mention on those to whom honor is due. While I will cheerfully do my full share in commending General Wagner and his troops to public esteem, when they earn the meed of praise, I cannot consent to pass this detraction from the praise due the noble fellows who did the work at Chattanooga, without an attempt to counteract it. If superiority in rank justifies the plucking of honors from the deserving to deck the brow of him whom wears the mantle of rank, I shall never be found paying obeisance thereto. Colonel Wilder crossed his troops on the 9th at Friar's Wilder crossed his troops on the 9th at Friar's Island. Concentrating his whole force he moved after the retreating rebels in the direction of Tyner's Station. Capturing at this place a large and important mail, and a large quantity of salt, which was distributed by order of the Colonel among reputed Union citizens, he pushed the column forward to Parker's Gap, a distance of five miles from Ringgold. Colonel Wilder's advance that entered town in the evening, retired before the advancing forces under Scott. On the 10th, Ringgold was again taken, our forces driving Scott finely after a short but stubborn resist-Scott finely after a short but stubborn resistance. Pursuing the enemy to a point one mile beyond Tunnel Hill and within six miles of Dalton, capturing a large mail and the Lieutenant commanding Gen. Forrest's escort, Col. Wilder learned that an effort was making by this shrewd cavalier to surround and cut him off. In returning hurriedly to Ringgold two of our scouts were taken captive by the rebels. The day following the command was ordered to feel the enemy in the direction of Lafayette, at which place he was expected to make a stand. Leaving Ringgold and marching by flank, in order to push back the opposing forces more rapidly, as the enemy contested every foot of ground passed over, eight miles cut our forces came upon Pegram's line of

Our line did not halt, but moving steadily forline did not halt, but moving steadily forward drove the enemy finely, until broken and scattered, pursuit of him appeared unprofitable. Anxious to capture the fugitive rebels, while the 72d and 17th Indiana pursued on the main road the 92d Illinois, by a detour to the left, attempted to gain their flank. Leaving the road but a short distance the regiment came upon Armstrone's brigade. Yankees. Ye stay: where's the regiment came upon Armstrong's brigade of cavalry posted on a wooded eminence and awaiting orders to close in on our rear. The firing hastened the return of our pursuing forces, who came up in time to learn that Scott, following the column from Ringgold, was coming up to take part in the engagement. Pegram, rallying his men, returned in good order, and the prospect of escape seemed gloomy. Planting the 18th Indiana battery in an eligible position, the Colonel determinant of the colonel determina ed to make his capture a costly one to the enthe west side of the rebel square an infantry line of battle. The command was critically surrounded. The 98th and 123d Illinois were defached and ordered to push back the right of the rebel infantry at all hazards, and thus open the only road left for retreat. The work was executed as directed, while Col. Wilder with the balance of the command held the enemy at bay. Taking advantage of the opening of the blockaded road, the Colonel, under cover of the dark, slowly withdrew his men toward Gordan's Mill, there joining Gen. Crittenden, but leaving his dead in the hands of the enemy. The dilemma was a precarious one, and the escape reflected credit on the skill of he commander, as well as on the valor of the

After this arduous, tiresome march and contest the command reports for duty to the com-manding General, and though fatigued, the men are eager to play a part in the coming bloody struggle.

The First Kentucky, however, lost a number of men. The rebel cavalry made a sudden dash upon them, breaking through their lines and capturing some forty or fifty before support could be given. I regret this exceedingly. The First Kentucky is a noble regiment, and has done some galant fighting in this war, and it is a pity that disaster should fall upon them at all. The advance of Gen. Meade, for the past two ays, has been nearly on the same line as that of Gen. Pope last year.

Gen. Buford, with his own division of cavalry and that of Gen. Kilpatrick, occupied Madison Court-House last evening.

Gen. Kilpatrick in person led the advance, charged and drove the enemy through the streets, capturing nine pickets, and killing one. The village was deserted by nearly all of its male inhabitants; but a few gray-haired old men could be found. The rich old rebel Gen, Banks, whose fine, fat cattle fed the command of Col. both ineffective and needless—needless be-cause we all knew beforehand every particle of his story, and ineffective because, even if we accept it exactly as it is presented to us, it leaves our conclusions just what they were.

The truth is, the course of the American war has taken us by surprise. When we first arrived at the conclusion that the South could never be coerced into reunion at the point of the sword, we still anticipated prompt military success on the part of the North. The only reserve affecting our judgment was a doubt about the earnestness and unanimity of the South in claiming independence. That condition being satisfied, we considered that though 20,000,000 of men were certainly stronger than 9,000,000, they were not so much stronger as to have any chance of subjugating these 9,000,000, dispersed as they were over an almost illimitable territory. We hardly doubted the immediate superiority of the North in the field. The general expectation of Englishmen was that the South would soon be overrun, that its seaports would be all captured and occupied, and that strong Federal garrisons would hold its chief towns. In short, we anticipated that the first six months, or, at any rate the first year of the war, would see the prostration of the Confederates thus far completed; but it was then that we thought the hopelessnes of the work would begin to be felt. If at that time we could have foreseen that the successes of the North, after more than two years of descerate

North, after more than two years of desperate fighting would amount only to the achievements now recounted with so much complacency by Mr. Seward, we should have thought the task of the Washington government more impracticable than ever. We venture to add that Mr. Seward himself would have been very much of the same opinion. We think it may be said with some truth that if the Federal government had, at the beginning of the battle taught them the extent of this mise an argument, and an application. His proposition is that the statesmen of England and France, having conceived at the beginning of the American war a belief that the restoration of the Union was an impossibility, persist in that belief to the present hour. His argu-ment resolves itself into a long narrative of the campaigns of the last twelve months, and this historical compendium is then applied to the purpose of correcting the prevailing be-lief, and impressing the two western powers lief, and impressing the two western powers with convictions more favorable to the Federal cause. In its object this State paper is certainly intelligible. Mr. Seward is perfect-route to report to General Burnside in the field. He is still encamped near Gen. year 1863 the seceding States would still be free, Richmond and Charleston still safe, and Washington in some little danger, the war lar at d a half."

Washington in some little danger, the war would never have been undertaken at all. That Mr. Seward, at this period of the strife, should be reduced to sing a pæan over the deliverance of the North from the invasion of a Southern army is about the strongest possible culation, and though they still limited the time to "ninety days," they expanded the were defeated in the East and evenly matched in the West. All that can be said at this mo-ment of Northern exultation is that the Fedafter sieges three times as tedious and as co enemy, as seemed highly probable two months ago. Mr. Seward, while coloring his history as favorably as he can, is compelled to talk o crawn battles as events creditable to the Fed ral arms; and the very paper which is deof the North speaks of the "necessity of covering the national capital," and the absolute equality of the helligerent forces in its immediate. diate vicinity.

There might be some purpose in Mr. Seward's present exposition if either we in this country, or the Americans in the Federal States, had begun by regarding the belligerents as equally matched, and the war as likely and we are therefore not much impressed with the moderate balance of success which Mr.

Seward claims for his own sake. In point of fact, taking one field with another, the South has a greater share of victory than the North capture of the Northern capital. Even now Gen. Lee is by all accounts more likely to resume the offensive than Gen. Meade; and, though we do not hear that the Federals are ies of the Confederates, we do hear that the confederates may be expected at any moment This is not much of a case for a power pretending so distinctly to superiority as to complain that the character of a belligerent is accorded to its rival, on that point indeed, let any one read Mr Seward's own descriptions, in this very document, of the strength, the numbers, and the bearing of the Confederate armies, and then say if the South be not entitled to the designation of a belligerent. Why, in recording the battle of Antietam, the Federal Secretary is actually compelled to expatiate on the identical qualities of the contending forces, and to add that the Northern soldiers were then proved for the first time to be diers were then proved, for the first time, to be not inferior in heroism and valor. Practically, not inferior in heroism and valor. Practically, then, the very gist and essence of Mr. Seward's argument is fatal to the object. If all is true that he tells us, that all is infinitely short of what we were prepared to take for granted two years ago, without being any the more sanguine of Northern success. We thought the North would overrun the South in a brief campaign, but would then find its difficulties begin. Mr. Seward tells us that after two years of mortal struggle the North has not overrun a quarter of the South—having the real difficulty still in prospect as before. We only conclude from this that the Federalshave not even the superiority for which we gave them credit, and that the relative strength of the Confederates is by so much the greater.

If Mr. Seward really wishes to make control of the confederates is by so much the greater.

If Mr. Seward really wishes to make control of the confederates is by so much the greater.

If Mr. Seward really wishes to make control of the confederates is by so much the greater. only conclude from this that the release have not even the superiority for which we gave them credit, and that the relative strength of the Confederates is by so much the greater. If Mr. Seward really wishes to make con-verts of French and English statesmen, he must adopt a very different line of argument. He must show us either that the South is evinsing a readiness to yield, or that the North has a policy which will admit of the restoration of the Union without this submission. But trary, he tells us that the Southern President has just proclaimed a levy en masse, while of his own government he says nothing, except that it is preparing to prosecute the war as be-fore. But what is to be the end? Europe thinks that the reconstruction of the nation by force of arms is an impossibility, and a very great number of Americans are of the syme opinion. Europe also sees distinctly that the South gives not the slightest sign of concession, while even the fortunes of war are not upon the whole very unevenly balanced. Not, therefore, without reason do we persist in our original opinions on the subject; but, though Mr. Seward has thus lost his pains, we can console him with the assurance that, so far as we are concerned, they were needlessly expended. If his object was merev to deter us from intervention, it is safe in spite of the failure of this argument. In the "domestic controversies," which have cost upwards of 500,000 lives, and at least 500,000,000 of money in two years, we have not the least design of interfering. The "adjustment" of these little matters we are ready to leave to

THE ARMY OF KENTUCKY. CAMP NELSON, KY., Sept. 21. Yesterday twenty-one hundred and sixty rebel prisoners, captured at Cumberland Gap by Burnside's command, arrived here en route for Camp Chase, Columbus, Ohio, under guard of the 86th and 129th Ohio regiments, and the Tennessee Cavalry. The rebel comman taken at the Gap consisted of four regiments of infantry, viz: 64th Virginia, Col. Slem commanding; 64th North Carolina, Lieut. Col. One battery of Tennessee artillery, commanded by Capt. Cain, was also taken. This is the best lot of rebel prisoners that it has been my fortune to see during the war. They were illy clad and bore no appearance of cleanliness that was remarkable, but they were men of good size, firm constitutions, and appeared in constitutions, and appeared in general good health. The men did not express themselves as willing to take the oath and come back to their old allegiance, but on the contrary they seemed resigned to their fate as prisoners of war, and looked forward to the day of exchange with an eye of cheerfulness that was quite discerni-

GEO. D. PRENTICE, Editors.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 25, 1863.

All thoughts are now intent upon the events that have taken and are taking place near Chattanooga. The information from that quarter is indefinite, but we all know that the most desperate and bloody fighting has taken place, and that, at the latest dates, the fortunes of the momentous and awful conflict were undecided. A despatch from Gen. Rosecrans at his headquarters on Wednesday night said that he could not be dislodged from the position he occupied, and a despatch from a member of his staff written at about midnight of the same day said that fighting during that day had been going on.

It is certain that the authorities of the rebel Confederacy, deliberately calculating their strength and their opportunities, have hurled almost their whole might upon the Army of the Cumberland, outnumbering it most fearfully. That our noble and glorious army has sustained itself under such circumstances as it has done, is and will remain a marvel in the history of wars.

It were idle for us to express any opinions as to what the final results of the conflict or series of conflicts between Rosecrans and the congregated forces of the rebel Confederacy are to be. We of course know not what reinforcements the two armies are respectively to receive, and we are not informed with much precision as to what their comparative forces deepest, the strongest, the most heartfelt confidence, that our glorious troops, who have already performed such vast prodigies of valor, will, to the latest hour, do all that can be done by human prowess.

Humanity as well as policy requires that our government should employ -no means of carrying on the war which will tend to intensify sectional asperities, or render it impossible to restore the Union as it was and seceding States are anxious to return to their ment. allegiance, but the coercion of the Confederate of the cotton States. By our latest Southconducting the war in future, exposes the vice they may be called upon to perform. utter hopelessness of the rebel cause. He suggests an entire change in the military policy, and as the Confederate currency is so much highest to the lowest, must fight without pay, necessaries and their families are taken under the public care. He advises further that all | this war come to an end. fact, he goes the extreme length of proposing that it shall be a penal offence to buy or sell a parish or county organization, controlled or supervised by the Confederate Government. By adopting those measures he thinks there would then feel that they are good, and that he would have something to fall back upon when peace is declared. There certainly was never a more wildly utopian scheme suggested, and it seems almost impossible that anything so visionary should be devised by a sane man. He would government play the rule of Ingomar the Louisiana" would be unworthy of more than did it not develop the important fact that the rebellion contesses itself crippled in finance and resources. Is this, then, not the proper time to develop such a "policy of conciliation" as can be adopted without detriment to the Union cause? Is it not the critical juncture the country is widely divided? We do adopted which would command the admirawho struggled to preserve the Union upon its the full enjoyment of life, liberty, and prop- the influences of the ballot-box : erty, and the incalculable blessings of national joyed by their descendants with unparalleled benefits until this sad civil war was comperception of the wicked folly of the struggle has dawned upon the Confederates, and and if it is rejected we shall be blameless of the bloodshed in future. In arresting the ravages of war, and in restoring the olive to our hearthstones, every merciful and kindly interposition will be "twice blessed," imparting blessings to those who exert them, and to those who are their recipients. Let us be the vicegerents of Heaven in the exercise of Post says truly, "which called for such unity its most holy attribute, and impress deeply of action on the part of all conservative men upou our hearts the great truth that When mercy seasons justice.

west of the Central Railroad, the most rigorembrace prisoners of war who are members of legally organized companies, and whose acts are in accordance with the usages of civilized order to the Department under his command,

The first special order issued by Adjutant General Boyle, after his appointment by Governor Bramlette, contained a recommendation that companies should be immediately organized in each county, as a means of selfprotection against guerilla raids and bandit robbers. It is desired that this organization should be effected under the amended State Guard Law of August 31, 1862. The Adjutant General says as soon as companies are organized they will be armed and subject to be called out to repel invasion and suppress guerillas. The importance of this movement is signified by the declaration of the order, that unless a sufficient number of companies are soon formed for the purpose of defence, a draft from the Enrolled Militia will be ordered. The companies are to be filled as nearly to the maximum as possible, and as soon as a company is organized under the law, the commanding officer will transmit to the headquarters at Frankfort a complete roll of the officers and men, when the former will be commissioned, and such orders given as the public exigencies demand.

We have been informed that in some sec tions of the State it is feared that this organization will materially interfere with the recruiting service, but we cannot believe it will so operate to any very injurious extent, when it is understood that voluntary enlistment for home defence will preclude the resort to a draft. We took occasion yesterday to repeat and enforce our opinions upon the propriety and the necessity of a complete enrolment and thorough drill of the State militia. If this had been done over a year since, immediately after the State Guard Law was purified from the odium which the recreant S. B. Buckner had attached to it, the State would have saved an immense amount in its ability to suppress the military brigandage which the rebels carried on, and we should also have been able to render invaluable aid to the Union were at the latest accounts, but we have the army in the protection of bridges and lines of supply. We are therefore glad to see that the chief executive officer of the government as Commander-in-Chief has moved so promptly in the matter. Gen. Bramlette in his canvass during last summer promised repeatedly that should he be elected he would lead to the field in the emergency of another invasion an adequate force to repel it. Of course this promise was predicated upon the willingness of the State militia to perfect their organization, and it will be a lasting disgrace to our citizen soldiery if it should become necessary to resort the constitution as it is. The people of the to a draft in the default of a voluntary enrol-

Thus it will result, with inexorable certaindebt, as in fact no currency would be necessary for the time being, but every one who ty, that if our occupation be prolonged it will lead us straightway into a war with the United should have Confederate notes in his pocket States. It is not for us at this moment to treat of such a war, but if the French government intends to sustain it, all its united forces will not be too much, and it will be something more to prepare for than a campaign in Poland. There is still time for it to take advice and to think of the future, but that time will very soon have passed away. We were considered confirmed pessimists when we as-serted, at the outset of the expedition, that the resolve civilized society back into its original savage elements, and have the Confederate would not suffice to take Mexico; to-day we limit ourselves to praying that the summons of the United States may not surprise us while barbarian, distributing spoils and flocks to suit the wants of its followers. The whole argument of "one of the ablest citizens of the Chances of which nor the subsequent con-

Although America is still a land of mystery, the defeat of the South can now be considered. ered a settled affair, not because resistance has become impossible (for the Confederates may make it endure almost indefinitely by transferring the struggle from the circumference to the centre), but because this resistance will hereafter be hopeless and without end. In the new condition to which the interest In the new condition to which the irreme when our Government can magnanimously diable fall of Vicksburg and Port Hudson has brought them the Confederate States would withdraw what it has regarded as necessary military measures, but on the policy of which the country is widely divided? We do expansion. The most humane and at the same the country is widely divided? We do not advise any relaxation of our efforts to crush the rebellion, or to compress it into such narrow limits that it will feel more rigidly the necessity of pacification and laying down its arms. But a noble, generous, and forgiving course might be adouted which was a forgiving course might be adouted which was a forgiving course might be more efficacious than the most severe wounds. The late success of the North has restored to the Union the States bordering on the Missispi; the others, reduced to their unsupported from our "erring brethren" the admission that bey had done wrong to the motives of those selves, but it will be a defence of desperation.

The Revue closes its article with the followoriginal basis; and that sad experience has | ing picture of the operations of our free inshown that the guaranties of the Constitution, | stitutions regulated by constitutional law and Let such a course be tried, and if it should fail, then we must fight our quarwealthy people on the face of the earth—tha rel out, and we shall have the consolation of not having provoked or intensified the bitter antagonism. Let us hope that a true perception of the wicked folly of the struggle his fellow-citizens poorer than the day he issued from it, and no one will dream even for that its searching beams may develop the abyss into which they are hastening. Let us hold out once more the hand of reconciliation,

We do not venture to hint that the Revu has a bitter sarcasm concealed under this last apostrophe which is skilfully directed against Louis Napoleon and his empire of usurpation and force.

"There never was a time," the Boston as the present. The Union, the Constitution, and self-government are attacked by secessionists in the South, with arms in their Generals Grant and Rosecrans some self-government are attacked by partisan offihands. The Union, the Constitution, and time since issued orders, that, as the Concials in the North. NOTICES OF THE DAY. Burksville, Ky., appeals to us to remind the military authorities that the border counties of this State, especially Cumberland and Clinton, need protection. He says:

They should be protected against such rebel hellhounds as Hughes, Furguson, Hamilton, & Co., and, also, against such Union hell-hounds as Captain Coffel, alias Smith. The last named gentleman passed through our town with about thirty-five men some three or four weeks ago and committed all sorts of depredations in our town and all the way through our county—such as stealing horses from loyal and disloyal citizens, stealing lafrom loyal and disloyal citizens, stealing ladies' jewelry, wearing apparel, breaking open private drawers, &c., &c. And when I applied to them as a Union man to give up a good Union man's horse they had stolen, they cursed me for a damn rebel, and swore they would burn the town. I hope the military will send a few good troops in here and let them remain until they catch or drive off such scoundrels as I have mentioned. GENERAL GILMORE'S OBDER ON THE POSSESSION OF MORRIS ISLAND. DEPARTMENT OF THE SOUTH, HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, MORRIS ISLAND, S.C., September 15.

It is with no ordinary feelings of gratifica-tion and pride that the Brigadier General commanding is enabled to congratulate the army upon the signal success which has crowned the enterprise in which it has been engaged. For Sumpter is destroyed. The scene where our country's flag suffered its first dishonor you have made the theatre of one of its proudest riumphs.

The fort has been in the possession of the enemy for more than two years; has been his pride and boast; has been strengthened by every appliance known to military science, and has defied the assaults of the most powerful and gallant fleet the world ever saw. But it has yielded to your courage and patient labor. Its walls are now crumbled to ruins, labor. Its walls are now crumbled to ruins, its formidable batteries are silenced, and, though a hostile flag still floats over it, the fort is a harmless and helpless wreck.

Forts Wagner and Gregg—works rendered memorable by their protracted resistance and the sacrifice of life they have cost—have also been wrested from the enemy by your persevering courage and skill, and the graves of your fallen comrades rescued from desecration and contumely.

You now hold in undisputed possession the whole of Morris Island, and the city and harbor of Charleston lie at the mercy of your artillery from the very spot where the first best ways for detailed. shot was fired at your country's flag and the rebellion itself was inaugurated.

To you—the officers and soldiers of this command—and to the gallant navy which has co-operated with you, are due the thanks of your commander and your country. You were called upon to encounter untold privations and dangers—to undergo unremitting and exhausting labors—to sustain severe and disheartening reverses. How nobly your patrictism and zeal have responded to the call the results of the campaign will show, and your commanding General gratefully bears witness.

Q. A. GILMORE,

Brigadier General Commanding.

GEN. BURNSIDE.—It appears from a semi-official statement that there is no truth in the report that Gen. Burnside recently tendered report that Gen. Burnside recently tendered his resignation in consequence of personal grievances. He requested, if compatible with the public interest, and in view of the completion of his campaign in Tennessee, that he be permitted to resign, to attend to his private business, which needed his personal attention. business, which needed his personal attention. The President promptly replied, complimenting Gen. Burnside upon his success in Ohio, Kentucky, and Tennessee, and requesting him not to resign, but to remain in the field with his present command—the Army of the Ohio. Gen. Burnside responded, that, if the public service required his presence in the field, he would sacrifice his private interest and comply with the President's request. He accordingly remains in the field at the head of his army. — Washington Intelligencer.

The Richmond Sentinel of yesterday cautions its readers against receiving the accounts, so far as received, as proof of entire success in that quarter, admitting that the battles of Saturday and Sunday were not conclusive, though claiming that the advantage was on the rebel side.

The Richmond Enquirer of the 23d says the battle, companied eight miles from Ringmation yesterday from Orange beyond the supposition that a battle between Meade and Lee was imminent. On Sunday both armies were drawn up in line of battle from one-half to one-quarter of a mile apart, and at some points, we understand, they were in full view of each other. NEWS FROM THE SOUTH .- A correspondent of the New York World writes from Memhight indicated that Gen. Rosecrans was burning his stores.

Another despatch on Sunday night says that a combined attack by Generals Hill and Longstreet was to be made on Monday.

A despatch from Atlanta, dated Ringgold this morning, reports that 4,000 Union prisoners have been taken, and thirty pieces of artillery, and the repols are in purposit. phis, Tenn., as follows: I have had the pleasure of conversing with I have had the pleasure of conversing with two gentlemen who have recently come with-in our lines from the States of Alabama and Southern Mississippi. The picture they give of affairs is not flattering to the prospects of the South. They give such circumstantial evidence of the dissatisfaction which exists as ers have been taken, and thirty pieces of artillery, and the rebels are in pursuit. It also claims a complete Confederate victory, with a large capture of artillery and colors, though admitting a heavy loss of officers and men.

An Atlanta despatch of the 22d says that all of Rosecrans's army was engaged; that Helm, of Kentucky, was killed; that Hood was mortally wounded, and that Major Richmond, of Polk's stoff was killed. The demond of Polk's stoff was killed. to entitle their expressions to more than ordinary oredence. The existence of the disturbance sat Mobile, which have been over-dignified by the name of "Bread or Peace Riots," is confirmed, and an appeal in the Register of the 6th, which I saw, corroborates the statemond, of Polk's staff, was killed. The despatch further says that on Saturday night Generals Hill and Longstreet made a combined attack and took 6,000 prisoners. It ment. A serious controversy has lately sprung up concerning the currency. Quotations of gold are omitted from the papers. Large transactions are being made in real estate, the adds, as a prophecy, that they will drive Rosecrans from the Missionary Ridge. Governor Isham Harris, of Tennessee, in his despatches to the Appeal, dated Sunday night, says that the two days' fighting had not people being anxious to hold anything rather than the treasury spawn. Cotton, sugar, and bacon show large and alarming advances in price. Debtors are crowding in with the "currency," which creditors are loth to rehad a definite result, and that Generals J. C. At Selma, Alabama, where the note of war and from twenty-five to thirty pieces of ar has always sounded like a mere echo, they are beginning to feel insecure. My informant On Monday Governor Harris telegraphed that the Confederate victory was complete. He adds: It is reported that we have taken 5 000 prisoners, and we expect twenty more pieces of artillery to be brought in. ays there are not many troops at Mobile, but Cemberton has several thousand negroes at work digging rifle-pits, and earth-works. Johnston has been removed, having gone to Atlanta to command in place of Bragg, but later reports say that he has been called to Richmond to take command of the Army of Mr. Shanks, the correspondent of the New York Herald, has arrived here from the battle-Virginia. I saw a despatch to the Register by the Southern Associated Press (which is field of Chattanooge, where he witnessed the two days' fighting. He says that the official reports of the battle from Washington are in the main totally false, and that really the army of the Cumberland has met with a defeat considered semi-official), alluding to him as commander-in-Chief. This, indeed, would Commander-in-Chief. This, indeed, would indicate that Lee had retired, thus confirming the reports about the differences between Lee and Davis. Anyway the enemy seems to be which must put them upon the defensive for some time to come. Thomas's corps was were some months since. Generally, I am inreally the only one which did any fighting on the first day. It defeated Longstreet, with horrible slaughter, driving him in great confu-sion over a mile, across the Chickamanga river. Longstreet, in two hours' fighting, lost one formed, it looks as if the end were near. The class, the more hopelessly they become in-volved in ruin the more they swear they are not. How far this alarm may spread, which usand men killed, and double that number is now almost a panic, we know not, but may indorse the opinion I heard, that, if the Government will but exert itself at this juncture, the whole fabric of treason will come toppling McCook's and Crittenden's corps, on the same day, were both badly beaten, and the enemy broke the centre, driving Crittenden's corps in every direction. There was flank and re-establish his line at the same time. The enemy, not knowing what he had centre and re-established that part of the line.
The day was ours, though the enemy held the field. We had taken three pieces of artilsome skirmishing between the pickets, but the enemy having suspended his forward movement, there was no serious collision be-tween the opposing forces.

The Yankees crossed the Rappahannock on the night of the 12th inst, in strong force, with lery more than we had lost. On the first day Thomas had defeated Longstreet; on the sec-ond he saved the army of Rosecrans from annihilation. From 10 to 12 o'clock on Sunday he fought the enemy and repulsed him in three

Among the rumors by the train ons in Chattanooga to stand a month's siege. The result is virtually a defeat to us, as we on Tuesday was one to the effect that a party have lost tremendously in material, not less than fifty pieces of artillery falling into the hands of the enemy, though Bragg only reof Stuart's ordnance train had been captured between Robertson and Rapid Ann rivers. It is believed that the demonstration on the Upper Rappahannock is merely a feint to eipts for twenty.

The rebel loss in killed and wounded will cover other movements—probably an advance via Fredericksburg—to meet which ample preparations have been made; but it is more probable that this movement is only a "reconstruction of the property of the prop exceed our own. WASHINGTON Sont. 24. Advices received by the Government to-day from the Army of the Cumberland, are to the effect that our wounded in the late three days' battle before Chattanooga have been conveyed to hospitals at Stevenson and Bridgeport, in Alabama, and thence taken to Nashville as fact as they are physically able to he removed. THE LATE FROST.—The late frost, amid its terrible devastation, has demonstrated one fact which will prove of marked importance to our Western jarmers, and perhaps work something of a revolution, in the partial sub-stitution of one staple for another, and that is Alabama, and thence taken to Nashville as fast as they are physically able to be removed. The number of wounded recovered from the field is not officially stated, nor whether any are now in the hands of the enemy.

The Government has received official information from Com. Bell of the repulse of our forces under Gen. Franklin, sent to effect a landing at Sabine Pass, and the capture by the rebels of the gunboats Clifton and Sachem, with their officers and most of their crews.

Richmond papers of the 22d have been rethat Chinese sugar-cane is bar lier than In-dian corn. Our information from various parts of the district of country recently visit d by the frost is to the effect, that, while the crop of Indian corn has been severely injure or almost entirely destroyed, the crop of Chinese sugar-cane has suffered little or nothing from the same cause, and that for hog and cattle-feeding purposes, it has suffered nothing at all. Our readers will recollect, that, at the general Sorghum Convention held in Rockford last December, the fact was certainly es-Richmond papers of the 22d have been re-The Enquirer, in a leader headed, "Victory in Georgia," says that Charleston and Chattatablished, by the concurrent testimony of several intelligent and well-known sorghum cultivators, that for hog and cattle- attening purnooga are the only points where the enemy present the least appearance of a fight. Defeated at Chattanooga and driven back on Nashville, the Vallandigham men would carry the election in Ohio next Monday with little roses, there was nothing like the juice of the sugar-cane. It was there assumed, and the assumption vindicated by concurrent testimony, that two gallons of cane juice were fully equal difficulty, and the peace men in the United States would once more assert their manhood and speak out as they did before the late disasters had choked their utterance. But it is not among the peace men of the United States that a victory at Chattanooga would most tell upon the people. in fattening properties to one bushel of corn, and that a good acre of cane would produce from eight hundred to one thousand gallons of juice; and also that the pork product from the cane juice was even superior to that from the corn. If this fact can be further established—and we believe it—we see no reason to doubt that in a very few years Chinese sugarcane and Indian corn will be produced in about equal qualities in the West—the former oon the people. Here at home its effect will be the greatest. It will reanimate our people, but the army needs but little reanimation. The people have not experienced the hardships that the army has, and they are more easily made despondfor sugar and syrup making and hog and cat-tle feeding, and the latter for man's consump-tion. There is a wide field opened for inves-tigation here, and we want to see our Western farmers take hold of the matter in earnest.

Reports from Newbern say that the rebel troops are massed in considerable numbers near our position, and our forces are ready for them if they advance, and General Foster's arrangements are such as to inspire confidence.

A Cairo despatch of the 21st gives a report that Pries's army is reduced to 800 men and tion, that Bragg's host will yet be driven back.

Office of Quartermaster General for the State of Kentucky,

FHE NUMBER OF CLAIMS AGAINST THE Government of the United States heretofore sent me for collection, which I have been forced to return being so great, and believing that my position will enable me to collect them at a much less expense to the holder than the discounts to which they have heretofore been compelled to submit, I have now concluded to employ in my office a competent person to audit and collect all such claims as may hereafter be sent me. All Quartermaster's vouchers, Commissary's certificates, Pay and Bounty due decessed soldiers, and claims of all kinds will receive prompt attention.

Arrangements will be made with Officers of the Government to secure prompt and sneedy payment of such claims.

Knowing that I can thus benefit the citizens of my State, I respectfully request that all who hold evidences of debt of any kind against the Government will send them at once to my address for collection.

YOUNG MEN, TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.—
Dr. H devotes much of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret habit which ruins both body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for either business or society. The sad effects of these early habits, or the excess of riper years, are to weaken and debilitate the constitution, estroy the physical and mental powers, diminish and enfeeble the natural feelings, and exhaust the vital energies of manhood; the pleasures of life are marred, the object of marriage frustrated, and existence itself rendered a term of uncassing misery and regret. Such persons, especially those contemplating marriage, should lose no time in making immediate application, as Dr. H., by his new treatment, is enabled to secure a speedy and permanent cure. ent cure.
